

If I was in charge of... ^{Aryaman} (The world) ¹

Introduction: First of all I would like to say that it would be awesome (au-sum-a-ti-cul) to be in charge of the world (awesome is a word I made up. It means better than awesome). Since the whole colossal world's responsibility is on my shoulders, I would want to dig into more important things so that the world becomes a much better place. Now to tell you what I would do if I was in charge of the world, let me begin.

First thing that comes to my mind is poverty. There is more poverty in Africa than any other place in the world. To stop poverty, I would put more schools in Africa so that the people there become more literate & if they can get jobs they won't be poor anymore. If they can get jobs they will be able to afford a much better life for themselves. Can you imagine Africa with everybody happy & going to school?

Another very important concern today is how unknowingly we are polluting the environment & the habitat we live in.

* I would persuade people to plant as many trees as they can.

* I would make a law in which each person who cuts a tree 'must' plant another tree in its place.

* Everybody should plant at least one tree in their life.

Wouldn't the continents look like green bouquets in ocean vases if we followed these rules?

I love animals. I hate to see them threatened and killed. There are about 41,415 endangered species and 16,306 are threatened to extinction in this world. I always wished that I could do something. Certainly I would punish people who kill animals, more severely. And guess what, they will have to attend lessons and programs to learn how to love and care for animals. Yes, that is what their punishment will be.

Let's talk about friendship now. I can't think of anybody who doesn't like to be around friends. That is why I wonder why these countries fight against each other. I would ban all fighting and put all the weapons in a box and order some astronauts to throw the box into the sun. That way all the weapons would be scorched and will explode. Wouldn't that be fun! Friends, friends and more friends!

My motto in life will be

'Go GREEN'. There will be rewards for all those who reduce, reuse & recycle stuff in their everyday life. This would cover aspects like,

★ using hybrid cars,

★ solar energy,

★ ethanol gas,

★ carpooling,

★ sharing things etc

Well, I guess I can go on forever, but I don't want you to get bored any further. I surely want to share a secret though. If I were in charge of the world I would love to go to the 'moon' once in a while and look down on earth and enjoy all the beautiful things happening there while I'm eating ice cream with gummy bears and marshmallows.
