

Penn State Lehigh Valley Writing Project
 is pleased to offer a series of Technology Writing Workshops

May 9, 2009
 9-11 a.m.

Writing for Self-Expression – will focus on podcasting and videocasting. These projects can be published for a larger audience, for the classroom or used for individual learning. They can incorporate images, music, and personal voices.

May 9, 2009
 Noon – 2 p.m.

Rich, Collaborative Information – will focus on the use of blogs and aggregators. One of the keys to this kind of writing is having a real audience that reads your writing and helps you find what you want to read. Aggregators allow you to manage what you are reading efficiently. Go from random surfing to organized reading of web content.

May 16, 2009
 9-11 a.m.

Digital Storytelling – will focus on creating storyboards and using still images, video, voice recording, and sound effects to bring your story to life using Windows Movie Maker and other programs.

May 16, 2009
 Noon – 2 p.m.

Collaborative Writing Tools – will focus on wikis, Google Documents, and Zoho Writer. These online tools allow groups to edit a single document and to comment on each other’s work. Additionally, they allow individuals to securely store works in progress online and work on them whenever they have Internet access.

Participants will receive two Act 48 hours for each workshop attended, so come to one or come to them all. Come to a workshop in the morning and afternoon and lunch is on us! Discounts are offered for attending more than one session.

All workshops will be led by Lehigh Valley Writing Project fellows and will meet at
